March 2011

Scallycomputechs has a new phone system. Our new VOIP phone system is through a company named 8X8. Changing phone systems cut my phone expense 50 %. Some of the features are the softphone on my laptop. I can send and receive calls right from my laptop, and in any location. The person on the other end, thinks I'm in my office. You can also listen to your voice mail message on your computer, save it as a file and email it. Also included is a conference call feature with up to 20 attendants.

Tip of the Month

E-mail Etiquette– Delay that send

Microsoft 2007 has a great feature to save your blushes when you send an email and you wish you hadn't. You can delay a single message or set an option to always hold your outgoing messages for a specific lengthy of time. It's also handy when you want to embargo your email.

Term: Adware

Adware or advertising supported software, is any software package which automatically plays, displays or downloads advertisements to a computer. These advertisements can be in the form of a pop-up. The object of the Adware is to generate revenue for its author. Adware, by itself is harmless; however, some adware may come with integrated spyware such as keyloggers and other privacy-invasive software
